Post office protest getting nowhere

Canyon petitioners who are seeking to change the minds of the United States Postal Service in locating a future post office at a tentative site in the western section of downtown Canyon have met with little apparent success this week.

The petition, opposing the selected site for the proposed post office, was signed by some 40 plus homeowners residing along Fifth Avenue west of the Courthouse in downtown Canyon.

Proposed site of the new postal facility is bounded on the North by Fourth Avenue, South by Fifth Avenue and encompasses the city block bounded on the East by 14th Street and West by 13th Street.

An advertisement in Sunday's Canyon News, paid for by a group of concerned citizens of the city, asks that local residents "tell the government" their feelings on the need for constructing a new post office here, or their own ideas for expansion and remodelling of the present facility.

And Jim Palmer of 1208 Fifth Avenue, Canyon, met Tuesday with United States Congressman Jack Hightower on the subject of the new post office. It was Palmer who last week was circulating the petition to avert the construction of the postal facility at it's proposed site.

Hightower reminded Palmer that the "postal service is an independent agency of the government — and Congress has no control over its operation."

As an independent agency of government, the postal service is governed and operated without political considerations, according to Hightower. The Congressman affirmed that he would be happy to forward Palmer's petition and other information to the proper governmental departments.

Prior to his Tuesday afternoon visit with Hightower, Palmer had presented a copy of the petition opposing the location of the new postal facility to Canyon City Commissioners and Mayor Manly Bryan.

The Commissioners report that the From the City's standpoint, the site is and would be permissible for the location of such a postal facility as long as the building itself is built on the north half of that block which is already zoned Retail and that no permanent structure would be built in violation of the two-family zoning on the south half of that block.

Only possible way that the City Commission could become involved in the particular decision for location of the postal facility, according to Glen Metcalf, city manager, would be in the event that such a building location should require a change in present zoning of the area being considered.

Although Palmer apparently knew that the City Commission would be unable to help in the plight of local homeowners, he felt it important that the signed opposition petition should be documented into the City Commission's minutes for future reference.

Residents and homeowners, who signed the petition, feel that the construction of the Postal Facility in Block 43 of the City of Canyon would cause their homes and property to be depreciated to an "extensive degree."

The petition also affirms the homeowners believe that such a Postal Facility would not only cause for additional traffic on the city street, but would warrant the removal of trees along the street for future widening of the street, thereby decreasing the beauty of a section of the city which was established many years ago.

Theatre to open for movie fans

Moviegoers in Canyon will once again have the opportunity to view first rate offerings soon with the re-opening of the Varsity Theatre, near the university campus.

The theatre has been closed since mid-April following the death of the operator, Charlie Donnell, a longtime resident.

Ownership of the local theatre is being purchased by Harry Swanson and his wife, Merry Jo, who are new arrivals in the city from Hudson Wisconsin. The couple formerly operated a theatre at Hudson which is located near Minneapolis-St. Paul.

Swanson plans to open the Varsity Theatre within the next couple of weeks, as soon as some major remodelling is completed at the theatre.

Workmen are presently installing carpet throughout the lobby and down the theatre aisles, installing drapes surrounding the theatre auditorium, and restructuring the concessions area of the theatre.

"We don't know what will be showing first," says Swanson, "but it shouldn't be long before Canyon folks once again have their own theatre."

In fact, according to Swanson, current theatre plans call not only for the re-opening of the Varsity Theatre adjacent the university, but also for re-opening of the Canyon Drive-In facility on the Hereford Highway, along with the remodelling and re-opening of the Olympic Theatre in downtown Canyon.

The Swansons are hoping to have all three theatres open within the next several months.

Presently residing at 607 14th Street in Canyon, the Swanson family also includes two children: Kirk, 10 and Thor, 8.

Budget, school plans okayed

In a mopping up action ratifying decisions made earlier, the Canyon school board Tuesday night adopted a $3.7 million budget and approved plans for a new elementary school.

The budget for 1976-77 school year is funded with 44 per cent local money, a bigger share than last year's 39 per cent, and 56 per cent state and federal funds.

The board set the tax rate at $1.20, a hike of about 25 per cent, that will bring in $157,227.16 additional funds into the interest and sinking account and $241,036.47 additional money to the operating expenses.

Plans for the new elementary school to be built at Sundown Lane and Western were reviewed and approved by the board.

The school designed by Cantrell and Associates includes 18 carpeted classrooms and five special classrooms without carpet to be used for activities such as art or science.

The classrooms, set in bays of three, will be divided by a combination of solid partitions and accordian folding screens to allow both a self-contained or a group class.

Included in the building is a library, multi-purpose room with a stage, a music room and teacher workrooms.

Outside, separate areas for auto traffic and bus loading are provided and a paved area is in-

Drizzle cool, not wet

Drizzle brought cool days but little moisture this week to dehydrated lawns and crops.

Monday, the Canyon weather station at the fire department recorded one-hundredths of an inch of moisture and only a trace Tuesday.

"This little drizzle is insignificant," county farm agent John Brazzil said. "We haven't gained anything to help out our moisture situation except to get a couple of cool days."

The wheat harvest is complete, he said, and although the yield on irrigated land was "fair to good," the crop as a whole fell short because of the drought on dryland wheat.

"We had a relatively small crop, mostly confined to irrigated wheat. It was a fair to good crop on irrigated fields, but since the majority of our wheat is dry land, we'll end up with a short crop."

Very little wheat on dry land was harvested, he said.

Grain sorghum and corn are looking good now on irrigated land, he said, but again, the major portion of these crops in the county are on dry land.

County. . . . .

What they didn't do is news

County commissioners Monday paid bills, discussed reappraisal again, authorized the purchase of a filing cabinet for the justice of the peace and reached some sort of an agreement in the dispute over Canyon North, but the biggest news was what they didn't do.

Commissioner's court had been expected to announce the hiring of Carroll Wilson, former editor of The Canyon News, as administrative assistant to the court. Wilson resigned as city editor last Tuesday.

However, commissioners held off on the announcement Monday, because, Judge Woody Pond said, they still had to draw up a specific job title and duties of the position.

The functions of the newly-created position are, as yet, unclear. Wilson may become the first administrative assistant to a commissioner's court in the state. Harris County was reported to have created a similar job but a Harris County official said Tuesday "we have no such animal." Officials were not available for comment Tuesday in Dallas County, also reported to have a county manager-type job.

District Attorney Randall Sherrod said, in his opinion, the creation of an administrative assistant position is legal as long as the job description is specifically spelled out.

"It is legal to create that office if his duties and position are set out as long as those duties do not infringe on those of the county judge or commissioners."

Sherrod said if the administrative assistant performed clerical or secretarial duties, public relations functions and similar tasks, he would be within the legal confines of the job.

"But if he gets outside that, he's going to be running the risk, or the commissioners are going to be running the risk, of acting unlawfully."

Duties of the county judge and commissioners are set up by statue, Judge Pond said, and such duties cannot be delegated to anyone else.

The idea of hiring a county manager had been kicked around by the commissioners in discussion before the creation of the new position. On June 14, according to the account in The News, the commissioners were not enthusiastic to the proposal.

There is some opposition to the appointment. Commissioners have been criticized for creating the position without any previous public discussion.

The salary, reported to be $13,200, had also stirred comment.

Salaries and raises for other county employees must be documented and justified to the commissioners from other departments of county government, Sherrod said.

"Other elected officials have to toe the line," Sherrod said. "We have to justify our positions and salaries and we have to watch our budget. They have a duty to the public to meet the same standards that we meet."

The appointment is expected now to be announced next week to begin work August 1.

Canyon north dispute

A dispute that has sputtered for months in commissioner's court over a road to a housing development just outside city limits Monday appeared to be on its way to a settlement.

Commissioners and Canyon developer A.W. Lair agreed to abide by a report to be made by an independent engineer outlining what is needed to bring a hard-surfaced road through Canyon North to county standards.

The dispute began months ago when Lair started developing the section of rugged land north of his Hunsley Hills development into country estate-type lots of about three acres each.

Canyon officials demanded a plat approval because the development came within the zoning authority of the city.

By this time, Lair had already laid the road and had paved it. The city planning and zoning board recommended that city commissioners grant a variance from zoning regulations since Canyon North was to be a rural subdivision catering, Lair said, to Quarter Horse fanciers.

The city commissioners finally accepted the plat with reservations that included no annexation by the city and that the road meet county standards.

Both city manager Glen Metcalf and city engineer Bill McMorries recommended against acceptance of the plat.

Lair has taken his plat to commissioner's court several times without having it accepted. County commissioners must approve a road before they will accept it for maintenance.

Since the city's acceptance is based on approval of the road by the county, and the county has not accepted the road, Lair cannot build anymore houses in the subdivision.

Monday, Lair, a Canyon attorney, brought his lawyers and his engineer to try to get his plat through the court.

Don Dean, former judge of 181st District Court, told the commissioners that according to state law, the commissioners had the right to set reasonable road standards and to require a bond not to exceed $3 a linear foot. Lair would agree to bring his road up to county standards and to post a

In other action

County commissioners put off again for another week any decision on reappraisal.

Barney Baker, of Professional Appraisal Company of Arlington, was the only representative of firms seeking the assignment to meet with commissioners. Other invited firms had conflicts, Judge Woody Pond said.

Baker told the commissioners that the appraisal being conducted now by Amarillo of north Randall County businesses would be of little value to his firm and would not reduce their bid. Baker said the bid was $233,600 with a bond and $232,060 without a bond.

He urged commissioners to decide quickly on reappraisal.

"You are just crowding it so close," he said. "It takes a year to complete and if you don't have a value by next July, you have to go back to last year's tax rate."

In other business, Jim Simms, president of Kids, Inc., asked the commissioners to up their payment to the youth organization.

Police upheld after board discussion

City commissioners spent nearly three hours in an executive session Monday night discussing a complaint against a city police officer before issuing a statement of complete confidence in the entire police department.

A parent of a high school youth who was charged earlier this year with illegal possession of alcohol spoke first in the closed commission chambers while the policeman, and other officers and friends waited outside.

Police chief Al Stewart appeared next and the officer was interviewed last.

At the close of the executive session, the commission reconvened to issue their statement read by Mayor Manly Bryan:

"Based on discussion we have had tonight with the principals involved concerning the complaint, the commission has complete confidence in our entire police department. Since all principals have asked that we talk to other individuals concerning this matter, this will be done."

Earlier in the meeting, the commission accepted a petition from residents of 5th Avenue protesting the construction of a new post office on block 43 between 4th and 5th Avenues.

The commission listened to the protest, but answered that the city has no control over the facility except through zoning regulations. Block 43 is zoned for commercial development on the north half, commissioners said.

Jim Palmer, spokesman for the group, said a new post office is not economically justified when the present post office could be refurbished.

In addition, he said, construction on block 43 would destroy one of Canyon's most beautiful and historic streets. Palmer said he was to meet with Congressman Jack Hightower Tuesday.

Canyon attorney Jim Brown asked the commission to block the extension of a water line across his yard to service a new addition to Hidden Valley planned by Canyon developer A.L. Crossland.

Failing that, Brown asked the city commissioners to enforce a city ordinance which governs the repair of property disrupted by the extension.

The water line is to be extended through the 10-foot right-of-way owned by the city.

Brown said the line may not be on his property, but it is his yard.

"It may not be mine, but I'm the one who paid to have it plowed, bought the seed and pulled the crab grass there," Brown said.

Brown said the extension could have been avoided with more careful planning by both Crossland and the city.

Brown said if the line is put in across his lawn "that they abide by the city ordinance that requires the ground be tamped every six inch layer and that sod, not seed, be put back and make sure the ground does not be allowed to sink and supervise the job all the time."

"I think asking the city commissioners to see that their city ordinance is carried out is proper," Brown said.

The commissioners did not take any action on the request.

In other business, the board approved a request by Wayne Wirt to pave a part of a block of alley off 23rd Street, okayed the construction by the school of ten-

Water line to new park to eat up most of money

It will cost an estimated $9,648 to extend a water line to Southeast Park, city manager Glen Metcalf learned this week.

The water line extended as far as the new baseball diamonds will take a major portion of the $13,500 alloted to park development from the sale of the old city hall building and the lot with the old library building.

The remainder of the funds is expected to be used to build a temporary road to the diamonds.

The water and road were recommended by the city parks and recreation board and were accepted by the city commissioners as primary projects for the funds from the sale.

In addition to the$13,500 from the property sale, the parks were alloted $10,000 in this fiscal year budget for park and recreation development.

Most of this allotment is being used to put in two baseball diamonds at the new park.

Both the parks board and the city commissioners have discussed previously contributing the cost of moving water and sewer lines under the lot recently purchased for tennis courts.

But Metcalf didn't rule out the possibility of help from the city, even though most of the parks money has already been committed. Estimated cost for the utility move is about $1,600.

"We could reduce that somewhat by using city labor," he said. "I don't know anything until I see what the road is going to cost."

The commissioners will have to approve any financial contribution to the school's tennis courts, Metcalf said.

The commissioners will also be asked Monday to allow the school to use about five feet of the city right of way along the road, he said.

The additional space is needed to allow proper separation of the courts.

Kevin P. Evans, new city administrative assistant, has begun preparation of an application for state and federal funds to be submitted by Jan. 1.

The principal holdup on applying for funds has been the lack of a master plan. The parks board has discussed the plan at the last several meetings, but has yet to reach a final decision on the location of each park activity.

Randall County 4-H girls attending the camp are Ronda Davis, Debbie Detten and Hilda Hartman.

4-H boys from Randall County participating in the camp include Larry Hales and Mitch Carthel.

The group will be returning on Friday, July 16. Some 108 youths and 36 adults are presently involved in the camp which provides leadership training, teaches 4-H members, leaders and County Extension Agents how to conduct 4-H electrical projects and method demonstrations as well as the preparation of 4-H records.

City clerk post filled here

Kevin P. Evans began work this week as administrative assistant to city manager Glen Metcalf.

Originally from Hereford, Evans has attended West Texas State University since 1973, majoring in public administration. He is due to graduate in December.

One of Evans' first projects, Metcalf said, will be to prepare the city's application for matching funds for park development.

Evans and his wife, Kathy, live 22 miles west of the city and plan to move to Canyon soon. Mrs. Evans is also a WTSU student majoring in business education.

Evans will fill the city clerk — administrative assistant post vacated by Tom Plumlee who is now Portales city manager.

Evans will begin work at the starting salary for Canyon administrative assistants, $721 a month.

Cancer society's divisional meet attended by local group

Five official representatives from Canyon participated in the recent divisional meeting of the American Cancer Society held at the Hilton Inn in Dallas.

Official representatives participating included the unit representative, John Childs; district lay director, Dr. Myron Dees; state board director, Paige Carruth; area public education officer, Mrs. Claude Currie; and District 15 headquarters chairman, Mrs. Steve Hines.

Also attending several meetings from Canyon were Mrs. Carruth and Mrs. Childs.

At the divisional meeting one of the most noteworthy presentations was an actual case of Hodgkin's disease including the inspection of x-rays, visitation with the five-man staff of doctors, three nurses and the patient.

The representatives attended the viewing of several new cancer educational films and discussed the total effect of volunteer service to the American Cancer Society. Over 200 delegates from across the state attended a convention reception held at the home of Dallas Cancer Society volunteer, Mrs. Eugene Locke, whose late husband served as the Ambassador to Pakistan during the late Lyndon B. Johnson's national administration.

New editor

Laurie Telfair, reporter for The Canyon News since October, has been named city editor to succeed Carroll Wilson, who resigned last week to accept a job in county government, News publisher Troy Martin announced.

Wilson is expected to be appointed administrative assistant to the commissioners' court.

Telfair, who was the associate editor of a weekly paper in North Carolina, has won several press awards for news writing. She is married to Army Major Dan Telfair, a military science instructor at WTSU. They have two daughters, Jackie, a CHS junior and Michele, an eighth-grader.

4-H awards program outlined in book

4-H club members and leaders are reminded that all records and forms relating to 4-H project work for the fiscal year July 1975-76 are due to be in the County Extension Agent's Office at the Randall County Courthouse before 5 p.m. on Monday, July 26.

Awards and medals will be presented in the fall at the annual countywide achievement banquet. Members can win the same medal or award only one time. If a project is underway, but not completed, records should still be turned in.

The highest county award in 4-H requires complete records being turned in on the ten sections of the handbook as required. To compete for the highest honor, the Gold Star Award, 4-H members must be 13 years of age or older by January 1, 1976 and have three years in clubwork including the current year.

Senior 4-H students (those between 14 years and 19 years of age on January 1, 1976) who plan to try for a state or national award should secure copies of the Awards Handbook from the County Extension Office. Various state winners among senior 4-H competitors will receive trips to national 4-H Congress and the national winners in some categories also receive college sholarships. Details of the district, state and national level 4-H work are included in the handbook available at the County Extension Agent's office.

J BAR C WESTERN STORE will be opening on Monday, July 19, at 107 Main Street (north side of Main and in the middle of the block) in Happy.

Judy and Charlie Coombs have been residents of Happy for about two years now. They purchased the home and acreage just south of the Happy Rodeo Arena. They purchased the old Fowler building. Now Judy has decided to open a western shop in Happy.

The grand opening will be during the Happy Days celebration. But Judy plans to open shop on Monday morning at 9. She'll feature long sleeved men's western shirts at $9.99 and boys' at $5.99. All Tony Lama boots will be priced at 15 per cent below the suggested retail price. All the ladies lines are already in stock, but some things are still coming in. Drop by and tell Judy how pleased we are about the new business in Happy.

SUMMER IS HARD ON YOUR EYES

Outdoor living, swimming in chlorinated pools and salt water, glaring sun, windblown dust, allergies and other natural irritants make summertime really hard on your eyes. It is wise to have on hand a bottle of eye drops for use when any of these problems arise. We carry a complete stock as well as many other eye care products.

Here are a few helpful hints to make applying eye drops simple:

1. Tilt head back and close eyes.
2. Apply one or two drops in the inner corners of each eye.
3. Open lids and let the drops flow naturally into the eyes.

cluded for play space.

The board set Aug. 17 as the day for taking bids on the school construction. That is also the day tentatively planned to sell the school bonds.

Bids on removing two buildings from the lot for tennis court construction will be taken Aug. 3, the board decided. They also approved plans to separate the courts by backstops and a paved alley, instead of the original design which would have required the moving of all utilities. The change will save about $9,000, administrative assistant Willie McAlpin estimated.

In other business, the board agreed to hire Jeff Bearden as assistant high school coach and math instructor, to replace Alton Fields. They also heard about a project just approved for federal funding that will provide enrichment courses for about 30 gifted seniors next year. The grant is $11,300 to begin the program.

Early in the meeting, the board sat quietly while Mrs. Vivian Madewell read a statement criticizing school superintendent Jerry Jacobs and high school administrators.

"My criticism is not of the teaching staff, however, it is of the administration of this system," she said.

Mrs. Madewell complained that student counseling at the high school was inadequate, with students being permitted to take repetitive courses and other blunders. She also suggested hiring a woman counselor.

"For at least three years, the counseling of high school students has been close to zero," she said.

Mrs. Madewell also lashed at the board's hair code and policy of deleting from the school annual photos of boys with forbidden amounts of hair. The Supreme Court, she said, in 1969 ruled that school administrators could not censor student publications.

"Now that Jerry Jacobs is leaving, you have a perfect opportunity to hire someone who has interest in and compassion for the students and parents of this school district," she said. "There are bound to be many good, qualified people who are willing to take the job of superintendent of schools who will refuse to try to build a dynasty and who will be selfless in their dealings with others."

from the District Office in Dallas relate that the ultimate decision for location of another postal facility in Canyon is a decision "yet to be forthcoming from the operational department of the Postal Service."

Roland Cook, a real estate officer with the Postal Department's District Office in Dallas, stated that to his knowledge "the land presently being considered has been proposed as a feasible site for such a facility." He further related that the site in question is tentatively available for purchase if the decision should be made to build there.

"No final decision has been made yet," he related noted that he felt certain that the operational department will "take all factors into consideration."

Palmer said he hopes to meet with Joe Bolar, postal administrator in Oklahoma City, who controls this postal region, tomorrow. Palmer has hastily put together another petition protesting construction of a new post office.

Palmer said anyone wanting to sign could contact him at his home at 1208 5th Avenue or call 655-4204.

pays $2,200 for recreation services through the organization, compared to $7,500 from Potter County and $16,000 from Amarillo, Simms said. Yet, he estimated that 50.3 youngsters involved in the programs are residents of Randall County.

The commissioners said they favored an increase and asked assistant district attorney Rick Wilcox to review the legal aspects of the appropriation. Wilcox told the court that an outright grant or donation from the county is not permissible but that, according to an attorney general's opinion, payment for services on a one-to-one basis is legal.

The court also authorized Judge Bill Wilson to buy a filing cabinet with dividers for $171.56, hired Roger Lynn Short as jailer with a salary set at $800 a month and, in executive session, reviewed 14 applications for county road supervisor. Reopening the meeting, Pond announced that they had narrowed the field to three applicants, who would be interviewed at the next commissioner's meeting.

bond, Dean said.

"Gentlemen, I'm offering you more than you're entitled to because you didn't enact any bond provisions at all (in the county road policy)," he said.

Commissioner Paul Lindsey objected to the subgrading of the road.

"There is no way to bring the road up to standard if the sub-bed has not been properly prepared," he said.

Lindsey insisted that Lair meet all the requirements of the county road policy.

Bill Thompson, engineer who has tested the road, told the commissioners that he had taken 15 tests of the sub-grade with samples every 490 feet. Lindsey replied "But what's it like between the tests?"

Lindsey said at one point that even if the road was brought up to specifications, he wouldn't accept it because it would not meet another county requirement to have a house at least every 400 feet.

"It's all in that," he said, patting the county policy book.

Finally, however, the warring parties accepted a move by Commissioner Dee Griffin to submit the road to tests by an impartial engineer to be selected by the commissioners. Lair agreed to pay for the tests and to take steps required to bring the road to county standards.

Oppe family spends vacation time relaxing in Grand Tetons

Hubert and Dorothy Oppe of Canyon and their four children, Michael, Tommy, Janey and Debby, have recently returned from a two-week vacation to Jackson Hole, Wyoming.

Mrs. Oppe writes of the family's visit to the Grand Tetons for their vacation in 1976 acquainting local folks with the owners of the dude ranch where they stayed in Jackson Hole.

"Three months of the year, Roy and Becky Chambers run a dude ranch in the heart of Wyoming called the 'Flying V' and the other nine months are spent at their cattle ranch eight miles away where they tend some 150 head of cattle including nine bulls.

"The dude ranch is located along the Gross Venture River in an isolated mountain valley well off the road and from the dining room picture window, there's a full panoramic view of the Grand Tetons; the snow peaks afire in the setting sun.

"The log cabins are authentic replicas in knotty pine and the newly-added bathrooms afford all the creature comforts in this valley wilderness. Each morning we were awakened by the sound of horse's hoofs as they were rounded up outside our back window, followed by the morning breakfast bell.

"Roy is a weathered character of a cowboy, reared in Jackson Hole and seemingly born in the saddle. Ranching is his way of life and though he says, "It's a terrible way to make money," he admits it's a fine way to make a family and a life.

"Funny how he can size you up and know just exactly which horse is for you and how he remembers the names of all 34 of them. Most of Roy's horses are Palomino and American saddle horses and they're all beautiful. Life on this dude ranch is leisurely unstructured but among other things available, there's a 2½ to 3 hour morning trail ride and sometimes in the afternoon, a "Lollipop" ride for the very young and inexperienced and the old.

"Roy's many horse trails held serene beauty and the spectacular, wholly untouched by man. He takes you through lush groves of Aspen with foot-high pale green grass, a profusion of fragrant alpine wild flowers, abounding wild life, clear rippling streams and down steep cascades if you're up to it. The horses know the way. They're sure-footed creatures of habit; some gentle and some spirited, but all responsive and we trusted their judgement.

"In the cold of the evenings after supper and the setting sun, we all sat around the bonfire roasting marshmallows, singing folk songs or just re-living the day's adventures. Our Tom split logs and made the fire each night and usually there was someone who played the guitar, the ukulele or the Jew's Harp.

"One day we fished in the adjacent Gross Venture River but the season was not ripe. We took a Snake River scenic float trip down the rapids and another trip to that magnificent beauty, Jenny Lake.

"Another day, I went on a lone and leisurely hike through a lush forest of Aspen and up a mountain path. There I found a skull which Roy later reckoned to be that of a young Elk.

"Don't bother looking for more bones," he advised. "The Coyotes dragged off that carcass long ago and left the head for the birds to pick."

"One day when Roy was missing at supper, I asked about it in the morning. 'Well,' said he, 'I raise cows and bulls and if you know anything at all about the birds and the bees, you know what I've gotta do.'

"He and Becky and their three children personally look after their 20 capacity dude ranch with Roy himself leading all the trail rides.

"I've got two wranglers and I'm both of them," he laughed. They have one of 30 cattle ranches in Jackson Hole. The work is back-breaking and the hours grueling and there are three occasions when time stands still; Spring calving, branding and round-up.

"The Chambers family is part of a long tradition of family-owned-and-operated ranches and their cattle weigh in highest of any in the valley, bringing premium prices for what will become 'Prime' grade beef. The generations of Chambers lived there when they had to generate their own power and when it was windy, they did their ironing. His hardy breed of a steadfast people still run cattle in Jackson Hole.

"Each day of the winter, they, as their forefathers, in blizzards and sub-zero weather still hitch the crawler to the sled, load it with hay and cart it out to the stock. The winters remain as bitter and the summers as dry, yet they survive as earlier ranchers, by hard work and perseverance.

"What higher tribute is there to the American pioneer spirit, and who would ever guess that so rough a wilderness would yet be so rich and so full of hidden treasures untouched by man," concludes Mrs. Dorothy Oppe.

Summer coolers

"The Queen of Hearts"
She made some tarts,
All on a summer's day;"

"But I wouldn't dream of baking tarts in summer," says a homemaker. Oh yes, you might, if the tarts take only 12 to 15 minutes baking time, and they're so good that all the knaves in your particular household would surely steal them "clean away."

The reason for quick baking on these tarts is that only the tender crust needs baking. The filling is a gelatin type which needs only to be dissolved over low heat. Then it's mixed with cream cheese, lemonade concentrate and whipping cream. At the bottom of each tart shell there's a surprise spoonful of cherry pie filling which makes the tarts colorful as well as delectable.

Since the recipe makes 12 tarts, three and one-half inches in diameter, it's an ideal one for dessert when you're serving luncheon or a supper for friends. Of course, they might also be used for a family dinner on two occasions, unless, of course, you have snackers who will delight in the treat.

CHEESECAKE TARTS

Tart Shells:
2 cups all-purpose flour
½ tsp. salt
6 Tbs. butter
6 Tbs. lard
½ cup milk

Filling:
1 tsp. unflavored gelatin
¼ cup milk
2 pkgs. (3 oz. each) cream cheese, softened
¼ cup sugar
1 can (6 oz.) frozen lemonade concentrate
1 cup whipping cream
1 cup cherry pie filling
Lemon slices

For tart shells, combine flour and salt. Cut in butter and lard until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Sprinkle in milk, 1 tablespoon at a time, mixing until flour is moistened. Shape into a ball. Roll out on lightly floured surface to ⅛-inch thickness. Cut out twelve 4½-inch circles. Line 3½-inch tart pans with pastry circles. Trim, flute edges and prick bottom and sides with a fork. Bake in preheated 425°F. oven 12 to 15 minutes. Cool on wire rack.

For filling, sprinkle gelatin over milk to soften. Dissolve over low heat, stirring constantly; remove from heat. Beat cream cheese and sugar together until smooth. Blend in lemonade concentrate and gelatin mixture. Whip cream in a chilled bowl with chilled beaters until stiff peaks form, scraping bowl occasionally.

Fold half of whipped cream (about 1 cup) into filling mixture. (Cover and chill remaining whipped cream). Spoon about 1 tablespoon cherry pie filling into the bottom of each tart shell. Top with filling mixture. Chill until set. Spoon dollops of remaining whipped cream on top of tarts and add lemon slices and fresh mint for garnish. 12 servings.

Other summertime desserts offering a "cool" day for the homemaker might include the following treats using whipped cream:

WHIPPED CREAM CAKE

2 cups sifted cake flour
1-1/3 cups granulated sugar
2 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
2 cups whipping cream
1 tsp. almond extract
3 egg whites, at room temperature
¼ tsp. cream of tartar
½ cup red raspberry or strawberry preserves
Confectioners' sugar

Combine flour, sugar, baking powder and salt; set aside. Whip 1½ cups cream in a chilled bowl with chilled beaters until stiff peaks form, scraping bowl occasionally. Fold in almond extract and remaining ½ cup cream. Beat egg whites with cream of tartar until stiff but not dry. Fold egg white mixture into whipped cream.

Gradually fold the dry ingredients into the cream mixture. Pour into two buttered and floured 9-inch round cake pans. Bake in preheated 350°F. oven 25 to 30 minutes. Cool in pans 10 minutes.

Remove from pans and cool completely on wire racks.

To assemble, spread 1 layer of cake with preserves. Top with second layer and sprinkle lightly with confectioners' sugar through a paper doily for a decorative pattern. Two layer 9-inch cake.

STRAWBERRY CREAM PARFAITS

1 pint strawberries
½ tsp. lemon extract
1 cup whipping cream
1 pkg. (3¾ oz.) coconut cream instant pudding and pie filling mix
1½ cups cold milk
1 cup vanilla wafer cookie crumbs

Wash, hull and slice strawberries. Sweeten to taste. Add lemon extract to cream. Whip in a chilled bowl with chilled beaters until stiff peaks form, scraping bowl occasionally. Beat together pudding mix and milk on lowest speed of mixer 2 minutes.

Fold 1 cup lemon flavored whipped cream into pudding mixture; reserve remaining whipped cream. Alternate layers of pudding mixture, strawberries and cookie crumbs in parfait glasses.

Top with dollops of reserved lemon flavored whipped cream. Chill until ready to serve. 4 to 6 servings.

WHIPPED CREAM FROSTING

1 tsp. unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
1 cup whipping cream

Use to frost two layer 9-inch cake or 10-inch angel food cake. Chill until serving or overnight.

The "fire dance" scenario is a highlight of the nightly performances of the outdoor musical drama "TEXAS" which is in it's eleventh season in the Pioneer Amphitheatre of Palo Duro Canyon. The current season will end with the August 21 performance. Shows are at 8:30 nightly, except Sundays, and due to the show's popularity, advance tickets are recommended by calling 655-2182 or writing the "TEXAS" box office at Box 268, Canyon, Texas 79015.

Breathtaking canyons site of musical 'fire dance'

(Editor's note: The following article was written by Bob Tonsing and is produced in a new "TEXAS" brochure. The original article was reprinted from the Kansas publication of "The Wichita Eagle and The Beacon for the eleventh season's brochure.)

Music . . . dancing . . . romance . . . pathos . . . comedy . . . history . . . dramatic sound and lighting effects . . . a beautiful star-studed sky . . . all in a scenic canyon with a 1,200-foot cliff serving as a backdrop!

Where can such a combination be found? It's a nightly (except Sundays) offering in a spacious amphitheater nestling in the bottom of Palo Duro Canyon that gashes the flat ranchlands of the Texas Panhandle. The chasm — once labeled the state's "best kept secret" — and its outdoor drama fast are becoming one of the Southwest's major tourist attractions.

Palo Duro, some 35 miles southeast of Amarillo, is about 120 miles long, but only its northern end has been developed as a state park for public use. It's one of the few deep canyons in the nation that has an auto road winding along the little stream that has carved its way downward for at least a million years.

Approaching from the west on Tex-217, the autoist is surprised to see the level road suddenly curve downward to reveal brilliantly colored cliffs stretching along the main chasm and several side canyons. His first impression is one of looking down into a miniature Grand Canyon. Many of the same colors and formations can be seen in that Arizona wonderland.

After a pause at the top for viewing and picture taking the tourist starts a series of curves and switchbacks that within a mile and a half bring him to a broad, level area on the canyon's floor, where he gets a closer look at the "Spanish skirts" and other delicately tinted formations that form the lower levels of the cliffs.

From there he may follow the stream about five miles along a paved road, crossing several fords that can be impassable for a couple of hours after a heavy rainfall. Many kinds of trees and shrubs, including some desert types, flourish along the stream, making it a pleasant place for campers. Hundreds of places for tents or trailers have been provided, with water and rest rooms close by. The camping fee is $2 a night, plus a small service charge if hookups are used.

It was in 1960 that Mr. and Mrs. William Moore and Mr. and Mrs. Ples Harper of Canyon, near Amarillo, contacted famed playwright Paul Green about dramatizing the story of the Texas Panhandle and the great chasm that crosses it. Green, who has authored seven of the leading outdoor pageants now seen across the nation, agreed and came to Palo Duro.

The Canyon group enlisted help of nearby communities to form the Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation. Fund drives financed building of a 1,700-seat amphitheater in the canyon. "Fandangle," a long-time production at Albany, Tex., was performed there in 1964. "Thundering Sounds of the West" played before 36,000 people in 1965.

Then on July 1, 1966, Green's "Texas" opened. It since has been seen and heard by more than 600,000 persons. The cast of 100 (including seven understudies) is largely from West Texas State University at Canyon, but also uses singing and dancing talent from seven other states.

The story concerns the Old West's struggle by pioneer farmers to gain a foothold despite opposition of ranchers who battled to preserve their unfenced grasslands from encroachment by settlers, sheepmen, towns and railroads. Calvin Armstrong (now played by Ron Williams), a farmer and Elsie McLean (Pamela Hurst), city-reared niece of a rancher, play the romanic leads.

Group dancing and singing enhanced by brilliant costuming, supply the most crowd-pleasing features of the production. Especially thrilling are the opening and closing scenes, built around the six flags under which people in the Texas region have lived.

Two super-dramatic episodes are highlights of the evening. One combines the superb natural acoustics of the canyon and the latest electronic equipment to simulate thunder and lightning so well that the audience would not be surprised to see rain pour down. (This actually happened nine nights ago, but it's a rarity.) Usually a glance at the canopy of stars above brings assurance that it's only make-believe.

The other top thriller depicts in dance and pantomime the Texans' battle against one of their many natural enemies — the prairie fire. Adept use of flowing garments, waving expanses of cloth, lithe body movements, crackling sound effects and skillful lighting create the illusion that it's real.

Romance and progress triumph, of course, and the audience leaves with the wish that there could have been more.

On the way to see "Texas" it's a good idea to stop in Canyon, about 15 miles west of Palo Duro, to visit WTSU's Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum. It contains many works of the West's most famous artists; authentic and actual displays of the region's early history, such as a bank, "tonsorial parlor," dress shop and saloon; a collection of guns from the early flintlocks to weapons used in Vietnam, and one of the most complete assortments of Indian artifacts to be found in the world.

200th birthday celebration was funtime

By JO FULKERSON

WHAT A WONDERFUL birthday celebration everyone had for Uncle Sam's 200th. Fire crackers and rockets all over the place, and for those who missed the Canyon Days Celebration Saturday, July 3, all I can say is I'm sorry you did. Lots of good eatin' and drinkin' stuff and many friendly folks.

Lots of the residents in Siesta took advantage of the long week end to take off and go fishing or visiting or wandering around.

JOE AND OLETA Carlton report that they had a wonderful week end at Eagle Nest, New Mexico, Taos and other places nearby on the Fourth. They met their son at Eagle Nest and the whole family enjoyed the cool weather and lovely scenery.

Mr. Carlton said they hiked a bit, kicked a few rocks, and relaxed in general.

MIKE AND DONNA McQueary visited friends, Bob and Becky Carrol, in Wichita, Kansas. They toured around to see the flood water, went fishing and enjoyed the green grass and those tall green things called "Trees," Donna, said, which lined the streets in Wichita. Quite a sight and lots of fun.

TOM JOHNSON WAS in the office recently describing his and wife Judy's vacation from 242 Loma Linda. Quite a tour from here, hitting points like Henrietta, Oklahoma, for an overnight stop, on to Memphis, Tennessee, where they saw the grand Mississippi River and went on a river boat.

I don't think Judy will mind if I tease her by repeating what Tom said: "She made a left turn instead of a right turn in Memphis and we spent two hours trying to get out of town when we could see the freeway right above us!" That didn't discourage them, however, they went from there to Nashville, Tennessee, and spent two nights.

They saw Opera Land, which was a very interesting combination of amusement park and shows. They saw Tennessee Ernie Ford and Company while there and Tom added that Opera Land is not strictly country-western, as they felt very lucky to see The Spirit of America Show, which was great. The Opera House is a huge place, and the balcony alone holds more people than you could shake a stick at.

Tom and Judy went to see Heritage, Andrew Jackson's home in Nashville. It was furnished as it had been originally, and they could easily have spent more than the one hour they budgeted for there, since there were so many beautiful things to see.

They went on to Lexington, Kentucky, and to Fort Boonesboro, a replica of the first fort. It was interesting to see all sorts of crafts in progress; weaving, soap making, etc.

They saw Henry Clay's home, Ashland, which was still being occupied until 1970 by Mr. Clay's family. Before they left they saw the trotting horses race at a track called Red Mile. Many more things, lots of fun, and quite a vacation.

DORIS MCKEE TELLS me that she, daughter DeAnn, and her mother, Mrs. Weaver, of Lubbock (who is spending the month of July with the McKees), left Thursday, July 2, and went to Paris Texas for a family reunion, spending the night in Bonham Thursday and finishing the trip on Friday.

At Paris, they visited with Warren and Virginia Bills, who took them out for a fresh catfish supper. Saturday morning all gathered in the Paris High School Cafeteria where 131 people had registered for the reunion. Lunch was catered and a special program was presented. Two door prizes were given and several other gifts, none of which DeAnn was lucky enough to win. A lot of visiting was done with old friends and relatives.

Saturday night they visited with Geron and Kathryn Crumley, an Aunt and Uncle, and several others.

They left Paris about noon on Sunday and arrived in Amarillo about 8:30, picking up Todd at his Uncle's house, where he had spent the week end. Doris said it was a very nice trip.
